

PORTUGAL IS UNDER CONTROL OF DICTATOR FRANCO TODAY.

Members of the Peerage Are Gathering in Lisbon to Do Homage to the Boy King Manuel.

THE FUNERALS ON FEBRUARY 10

Official Story of the Assassination Given Out States That One Man First Shot King and Then Others Shoved Through Crowd—Crown Prince Defended Himself Courageously.

Lisbon, Feb. 3.—Promoter Franco, acting absolute Dictator under full power of the new King, seems to have Portugal under complete control today. King Manuel is suffering little from the wound he received and Queen Amelia is lying peacefully beside the corpse of the dead King and her son. The funerals will be held February 10. Members of the House of Peers are gathering in the capital to do homage to the new King.

There was some confusion concerning the organization of a new Cabinet. It is reported it will be formed by Admiral Ferreira do Amaral. Franco's name does not appear on the list.

The official account of the assassination follows: The King, Queen and Crown Prince were riding in the first carriage. Prince Manuel and the royal palace officers were in the second. In front of the Crown Prince, who was armed with a carbine suddenly broke through the front rank and shot the King. The distracted Queen tried to shield the Crown Prince, who defended himself courageously with a stick against the other man. Suddenly more shots were heard and the Crown Prince fell mortally wounded. The Queen shouting for help bent over his body and received the last kiss. The Prince immediately expired. All three perpetrators were killed.

An infantry battalion reloaded at Oporto following the receipt of the news of the King and Crown Prince's assassination. The men declared they would serve no longer under a monarchistic government. Loyal troops arrested if mutineers without a fight. This trouble it is believed furnished the basis for a report that a republic had been proclaimed at Oporto.

Physicians fear the sanity of Queen Amelia. She refuses to eat, or leave the bodies, and is breaking down under the strain.

DICK GUY HERE.

P. O. M. President Looking Over Prospects in Connellsville Today.

R. R. Guy, President of the P. O. M. League, is in Connellsville today and at 2 o'clock this afternoon will have a conference with men interested in baseball at the Marietta Hotel. Connellsville will get a chance to go into the P. O. M. if they can get away from the West Penn, and they would be glad of the opportunity, provided enough financial interest can be raised.

Unintown would like to have Connellsville in and so would every baseball fan in this part of the country.

RISKY VENTURE.

Foreigner Goes Out on Thin Ice to Recover Hat.

A foreigner this morning risked his life to save his hat which blew off his head and landed on the ice in the Young river. It took him about half an hour to decide about getting the hat back, but he finally climbed down the bank and walked out on the ice. Many thought it was too thin to bear his weight and expected to see him drowned. He got the hat all right, much to the surprise of the on-lookers.

The river was frozen almost across this morning, but a narrow strip in the center being free from ice.

DOCTORS' BANQUET.

It Will Be Held at Arlington Hotel First Thursday of March.

The second annual banquet of the Young Medical Social Club which has been postponed until the first Thursday evening in March.

The regular meeting will be held Thursday evening at the home of Dr. R. S. McKee on Main street, New Haven.

Meetings in New Haven.

The regular monthly meetings of the New Haven Council and School Board will be held this evening. A new Clerk of Council will be elected, succeeding E. O'Donovan, whose resignation was accepted at the last meeting.

ELECTION MUDDLE

In Redstone Township Straightened Out by Commissioners Today.

UNIONTOWN, Feb. 3.—The election officers of Redstone township, Nos. 1 and 2, in which there was a mix up over the primary vote appeared before the commissioners with their ballot boxes and the tangle was straightened out. The election officers had put some of the papers that should have gone to the commissioners in the ballot boxes and vice versa.

The returns of both parties were made out together and it was impossible to determine the result of the vote.

LIBRARY REPORT.

Books Circulated Second Largest in History of the Library—Total Registration is Now 3,930.

The monthly report of the Carnegie Free Library given out this morning by Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Daigh, librarian, stands second in the history of the library, 4,255 books being circulated during the month, an increase of 1,300 over that of the month of December. January 31, 1,134 books were in circulation. During the month 157 books, 143 of which were non-fiction and 25 juvenile, were added, making the total number of books now in the library 5,950.

There was 75 new registrations during the month making the total registration 3,930, which is more than half as many people, as there are books in the library. Visits to the reference room were 405 and 460 patrons visited the periodical room. From January 15 until January 31, 20 magazines were in circulation.

Fifty-five back volumes of magazines are now ready for the binder. During the month 312 children attended the Story Hours, conducted by Miss Sarah Seaton, assistant librarian. The Sunday attendance is not as large as it should be.

WILLIAMS APPOINTED

To Vacancy in Register and Recorder's Office Made by the Resignation of Greene.

UNIONTOWN, Feb. 3.—A new face in the Register and Recorder's office today is Ash F. Williams, who was for many years chief clerk in the Prothonotary's office. Mr. Williams succeeds Roy Bowden of Dawson, who was made chief deputy to Register and Recorder Logan Rush, succeeding Wm. W. Greene, whose nomination as postmaster of Uniontown is now before the Senate.

Postmaster Greene's commission has not arrived yet, but it is expected here today or tomorrow. The appointment of Greene as postmaster removed him from the field as a candidate for Register and Recorder. Williams recently resigned his position in the Prothonotary's office.

LUNACY COMMISSIONER.

J. M. Ogilvie Appointed for Rachael Frye of Markleysburg.

UNIONTOWN, Feb. 3.—Attorney J. W. Dawson this morning presented a petition asking that a commissioner in lunacy be appointed for Rachael Frye of Markleysburg, and J. M. Ogilvie was appointed. The petition was filed at the request of Sylvanus Thomas, who has $400 in funds due the woman from the settlement of an estate. She has been in the asylum for some time.

Ordinances May Go Back To Council for Revision.

It is probable that the fire department ordinance and the anti-spitting ordinance, passed at the last session of Town Council, will be returned to Council without Burgess A. D. Solson's approval when it meets tomorrow night. Burgess Solson would not sign today whether he would sign the ordinances or not. He said he did not know exactly what he would do until he had the opinion of the Borough Attorney regarding the ordinances.

It seems that there are some little irregularities in the ordinances, that may prevent them from becoming effective if they are signed and there have been taken up with Borough Attorney H. C. Higgins. The fire ordinance is said to have some conflicting paragraphs which would make it inoperative, while the anti-spitting ordinance in its present shape might place the Borough in a position of having to pay damages.

Burgess Solson said that he was not clear on these points and he had not time to go into them, but he would like to know what he would be required to do on the points involved from the Borough Attorney. However his decision will be made in time for the Council meeting tomorrow evening.

Fire Chief J. W. Mitchell has sent out a general notice requesting those who desire to join the volunteer companies to have their applications filed so that they can be presented to Council tomorrow evening. There are about 20 applications filed already, but a number of good volunteer men, who belonged to companies in the past, have not handed in their names, and they are requested to do so.

CASE SETTLED.

Suit of Orient Coke Company Against Redstone Township Dropped.

UNIONTOWN, Feb. 3.—A settlement has been effected in the case of the Orient Coke Company against Redstone township. This was a claim for about $200, the company claiming that the Supervisors had contracted to save coke ashes placed along a road in the township and that the township would pay for the work. When the bill was rendered there was a dispute over it. It is not known the terms of the settlement made today.

LIVELY POLICE COURT.

Obstreperous Colored Man Who Was Bent on Slashing Fined.

AWFUL FALL OFF WATER TANK

Of Irwin McCutcheon Who Had Been Riding High and Dry for the Past 17 Years—He Got Off With a Light Fine—No Old Rounders.

Sunday police court was attended by a large crowd, notwithstanding the bitter weather. Irwin McCutcheon, a negro, was fined $5 for disorderly conduct at the Vynan hotel, McCutcheon threatened to cut the heart out of Michael McGinn, a bartender, and also said he would slay any officer who attempted to arrest him. He was very meek when Officer McCutcheon took him by the shoulder and hustled him to the police station.

Irwin McCutcheon, 65 years old, who has been riding the water wagon for 17 years, slipped Saturday night, and fell from it with a terrible thud. McCutcheon awoke in a glorious jag that got him mixed up in the policeman's matter. He wanted the night behind the bars, because he had been good so long and because he was old. Burgess Solson's heart softened and he gave McCutcheon the bargain price of $2 for his drunk. McCutcheon paid and said that he was going back to the water wagon to finish out his career.

Charles Tonder of Conditbrook paid his regular quarterly visit to the police station Saturday night. Chief Rottler says that he comes about every three months and contributes a check for $3.00. Times have been hard at Conditbrook and he is unable to leave his club this time and his credit was extended to February 10, when he will receive his pay.

David Weisman of Meyer left his watch with Burgess Solson to secure $3.50 charged him for drunkenness on Saturday night. John Smith of Everett took 45 hours in preference to raising the nail.

A remarkable fact of the Sunday morning hearings was that not a single one of the old rounders were caught. Some of those who have been famous in police court haven't put in an appearance for more than 10 days and the police are beginning to wonder where they are.

TWO FATALITIES ON THE RAILROAD.

Brakeman E. F. Davis Killed at Eureka on Saturday.

WAS HIT BY FAST TRAIN NO. 47

Leaves Bride of a Few Months on Patterson Avenue, Connellsville—Italian Watchman Run Down by Train No. 9 on Sunday Morning.

Ernest F. Davis, 21 years old, a Pittsburg division brakeman, was run down and instantly killed at Eureka Saturday afternoon by Train No. 47. Davis was off his train standing along the track at Eureka when the first express sped around the curve. He was struck by it and hurled against his own train, and his life knocked out of him. His head was horribly smashed and his body mangled.

Davis resided with his wife at the home of H. P. Thompson, 209 Main Patterson avenue. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Davis, reside in North Carolina. He was married but a few months ago. The body was brought to Connellsville and prepared for burial by Undertaker J. E. Sims. The funeral will take place on Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock, with interment in Hill Grove cemetery.

Stephano Canino, an Italian, employed as watchman by the B. & O. at Indian Creek, was run down Sunday morning by Train No. 9 at Indian Creek and instantly killed. The remains were brought to the undertaking rooms of J. E. Sims last night and the funeral will take place Tuesday with interment in St. Joseph's cemetery. Canino was 43 years old. It was thought that Canino was walking along the track to see that it was in good condition, and that, having his head muffled in a heavy shawl, did not hear the approach of the fast train. The crew of Train No. 9 did not know that the man was there until it was too late. The man had been killed.

CAR DITCHED.

West Penn Coach Jumped Track at Buckeye Switch and Went Over a Small Bank.

MT. CLEASANT, Feb. 3.—A West Penn street car, due at Mt. Pleasant at 7:30, was derailed at Buckeye Works, midway between Iron Bridge and Mt. Pleasant, at 7:15 o'clock Sunday evening. The car being precipitated down a five foot embankment, lying on the street car system several hours. Passengers were transferred around the track, however.

As the car came off the Buckeye siding Motorcar Fulton applied the power to get under good wayward when he felt a bumping and jerking behind and received the signal of Conductor Clifford. Before to stop. He made the stop in fact, but the rear truck of the car had climbed the frog part of the switch and allowed the wheels to slip down over the bank.

The car was filled with passengers, but the embankment was so small that not even a window in the car was broken and every one escaped injury. Working crews were hustled to the scene, but it was several hours after the accident before the car was back on the rails, hand jacks being used.

GIRL SENT HOME.

Superintendent of Police McQuaide Takes Care of Dawson Young Woman in Bad Company.

Special to The Courier.

PITTSBURG, Feb. 3.—Superintendent Thomas A. McQuaide's sincerity and reputation for generosity were again demonstrated Saturday when he went into his own pocket to help one of the women taken in the Third avenue raids last Saturday night.

The woman was Mabel Gietty, who was arrested as a visitor at No. 136 Third avenue. At the police station she was found to be in a serious condition from the use of morphine and was sent to the Homopathic hospital. When she was released yesterday the young woman was penniless. When she promised to return to her parents at Dawson, Pa., and try to reform, Superintendent McQuaide supplied her with money to pay her transportation.

M. DARR'S FUNERAL.

Interment at West Newton on Sunday Afternoon.

Impressive services were held Saturday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the home of James S. Darr on South Pittsburgh street over the remains of the late Michael Darr, Sr., Rev. B. H. Burgess, pastor of the Trinity Lutheran church officiated and the services were attended by many friends of the deceased.

The body was taken to West Newton for interment, yesterday afternoon over the P. & L. E. railroad.

AN ELOQUENT LECTURE

Dr. Byron W. King's at Men's Meeting of the Y. M. C. A.

THE AMBITION OF HIS BOYHOOD.

Has Established a Home at Salt Lake City Now and is a Lecturer of National Prominence—Goes to Florida Next Week.

A big audience turned out at the Y. M. C. A. at the Solson theatre yesterday afternoon.

The address of Dr. Byron W. King was an eloquent plea, delivered by a master of elocution, for "The Charity that thinketh no evil." The speaker played upon the heartstrings of his audience with a skillful hand. He led them from sadness to laughter, from tenderness to pathos, but he kept them ever close to the Perfect Man. He said he drove 16 miles the night before, from 10 o'clock to 1, in a blinding snow storm and bitter cold, rather than to disappoint the old friends in Connellsville. He referred to his early life near Mt. Pleasant and his struggles to overcome a hopeless case of stammering. He said he was a good quiet boy, because he couldn't help it, but that his wildest ambition was to talk; and he added that some people had perhaps been sorry ever since that he stammered. He spoke of his first commencement at Statestown, where the audience counted the persons at the admission and six of them died. In the early days, he said The Courier referred to him as "Byron W. King, the elocutionist." The ambition now was to be called by another name. He wanted to be known as the "Gladstone of the Human Race." He wanted people to look up at the light of Christian charity and brotherly love, not down at the neck and misery of dark and brooding suspicion. After the lecture Dr. King spoke some time shaking hands with old friends and acquaintances. The Mt. Pleasant school boy and local elocutionist has become a lecturer whose fame is national. He has established a home in Salt Lake City. Next week he goes to the Florida Chautauqua at Deland, where he gives a two weeks' course of lectures on Shakespeare.

LEWIS ELECTED

Head of the Mine Workers' Organization and Announcement is Made Amid Cheers.

United Press Telegram.

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 3.—T. L. Lewis was elected President of the United Mine Workers' succeeding John Mitchell. The announcement was made by the tollers today amid cheers.

W. B. Wilson, the opposing candidate, congratulated Lewis. John P. White was elected Vice President and William D. Ryan Secretary and Treasurer.

Mr. Lewis is considered a brainy man. He has studied law and came up from the mines. He has elaborate plans for making the organization stronger and larger. Lewis received 64,533 votes and Wilson 62,472.

Mistaken for a Burglar; Swain Gets Warm Welcome.

Going calling on young ladies in Dunbar without first making arrangements is a dangerous practice, and came very near causing George Waggoner his life. Waggoner started out Saturday night to spend a few hours in company with Miss Anna Lockenby at her home, but he didn't remain very long. Arriving at the young lady's home he rapped loudly upon the door. A voice from the second story of the house inquired who was at the door.

"Come down and see for yourself," replied young Waggoner.

Miss Lockenby did come down, but before doing so she took a 38 calibre revolver from her dresser drawer, grasping it firmly in her right hand she gently opened the door with her left hand and thrusting the cannon through, pulled the trigger three times. Waggoner went hot foot from the door down the street. Miss Lockenby heard him going and opening the door a little wider than she saw that she had made a mistake.

George Waggoner is on the look out for burglars. It is said that bands of families have Winchester standing loaded near at hand and that young men sleep with revolvers under their pillows. The incident of Saturday night proves that the young ladies are armed too with other things than smiles.

Young Waggoner made a sprinting record getting away from Miss Lockenby's door. It was lucky that he stood to one side of the door when it was opened and Miss Lockenby fired. Hereafter he will have a better understanding as to his identity when he goes calling in Dunbar.

CARNEGIE LIBRARY TRUSTEES TAKE UP SCHOOL OF MINES.

Committee Appointed at the Last Meeting Meet and Informally Talk Over Prospective Action in the Matter.

SUIT IN EQUITY

Over a Shoe Shining Establishment Started in Uniontown.

UNIONTOWN, Feb. 3.—Through Sterling, High-e & Dumbauld a suit in equity has been brought by Coast Downburg against James Ferris. The plaintiff and the defendant entered into a partnership in a shoe shining parlor and rented a room from William Hunt and John Gilmore.

Later each of them got separate lessons from the two owners for the room. The defendant, however, opened the shining parlor and now the plaintiff wants a division of profits, alleging that he is still a partner in the business.

LAID TO REST.

Funeral of Dr. J. Clark Johnston Held Yesterday Afternoon at Home of Colonel Reid.

Dr. J. Clark Johnston's remains were laid to rest in the Hill Grove cemetery yesterday afternoon. The interment was private. Services were held at the residence of Colonel J. M. Reid. Rev. Ellis B. Burgess spoke touchingly of the life and character of the deceased, who for 29 years had been a resident of Butte, Montana, where during nearly all of that period he was head surgeon at the St. James Hospital where he was known to the Sisters of Mercy as the "Big Father." The burden of the speaker's remarks was the kindly, generous and merciful character of the "Big Father," and how generally he was beloved in the city of his adoption. His life was one never-ending career of mercy and we have the authority of Holy Writ for the statement: "Inasmuch as ye do it unto the least of these, ye do it unto me."

Dr. Johnston was born in Connellsville in 1849. He was educated in the public schools and Elderbridge academy. He read medicine with the late Dr. Lucius Lindley and graduated from Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia. In 1874 he located in Butte, Montana, where his brother, Alexander, had previously engaged in business with Senator William A. Clark.

MORTON GETS MONEY.

Orphan's Court Directs That Funds Held by Court Be Turned Over to Him.

UNIONTOWN, Feb. 3.—Judge J. C. Work of the Orphan's Court this morning made an order directing that the funds collected for rents, which have been held by the court since the dispute began over the will of the late Amanda Morton, be paid over to the executor, A. B. Morton.

A decree and distribution in the estate of late Murray, late of Springfield township, who died January 21, 1907, was made this morning. The deceased left four children and appointed George Kora executor, who reported that there was $333.92 for distribution. Each of the children was ordered paid $200 and the balance distributed pro rata.

NOTHING DEFINITE IN VIEW YET.

Opinion of Mining Men in the Connellsville Region Sought—School Could Be Located on Ground Adjoining Carnegie Library and Would Be Great Thing for Connellsville.

Formal action has been taken in the movement "suggested" number of times to secure a school of mines or mining college for Connellsville in connection with the Carnegie Free Library which has been done, and is still doing, such a great good in this community. At the last meeting of the Board of Trustees a committee of seven was appointed to take up the matter of establishing a school of mines in Connellsville. Nothing definite whatever has been done. There is no foundation upon which the Trustees appointed to this committee can start. They propose to get the opinion of leading mining men of the Connellsville region, and the views of Superintendents, mine foremen and intelligent miners. After securing these and casting about at along any other lines by which they might arrive at a starting basis through which to launch the movement for a School of Mines they will be ready to take up the work.

The committee appointed is composed of Dr. J. C. McClelland, J. E. Smith, H. P. Snyder, Rockwell Martin, Chas. Sullivan, Edmund Dunn and W. S. Schenck.

A meeting of this committee was held at the Library yesterday afternoon. The establishment of a School of Mines was proposed at a school length. All of the discussion, of course, was purely informal. The Trustees got the views and suggestions of one another.

Should the proposition come to a head and the location of a mining school in Connellsville be taken up, the Library Trustees, by reason of their position, would be called into the matter. It might be possible, when matters progress far enough, if they reach that stage, that the scheme would be brought to the attention of Andrew Carnegie with the idea of securing his financial assistance.

BUYS A HOTEL.

S. K. Reed Purchases the Ft. Marion House from D. J. Johnson for About $25,000.

Sample K. Reed, formerly part-owner and manager of the White Rock Distilling Company, has purchased the Ft. Marion House from D. J. Johnson, and the house and fixtures from Proprietor Albright. He will make application for the transfer of the license at this time of license court. The consideration is said to be $25,000.

The hotel is splendidly located and is in first class condition. It was for a number of years owned by Andrew Haas, who disposed of it to the Ft. Marion Hotel. Mr. Haas got the first license granted at Point Marion. In the past few years Point Marion has grown wonderfully and is now a thriving little town. Its future is very promising as there are a number of new coke companies opening up the territory and the glass industry is expanding each year. Mr. Reed was at Point Marion today on business connected with the transfer of the hotel.

PROMINENT MEN ARE ARRESTED.

Druggists at Fayette City
Charged With Illegal
Sale of Liquor.

TWO ON GAMBLING CHARGE.

County Detective McBeth and Assistant Swooped Down on Two Arresting Clerks and Proprietors—Has Caused a Big Sensation There

Special to The Courier
FAYETTE CITY, Feb. 3.—A sensation was created here this afternoon at 2 o'clock when County Detective Alex McBeth, Frank McLaughlin, his assistant, and Constable A. J. Bowls arrested three prominent druggists and their assistants, charging them with selling liquor without license and two other men for running a gambling joint.

Those arrested for selling liquor without a license are Joseph Stoll and his clerk Thomas Fields and George Taylor. S. M. Moore and clerks Charles Plesius and J. H. Stewart, and Druggist C. B. Patton. Those arrested for running a gambling joint are Frank McLaughlin and Frank Thirkell.

The arrests were made very quietly and there was not the least indication of the officers making them. The information was given to the proprietors by the officers, who were sworn to by Frank McLaughlin, whom it is said has been making an investigation of the happenings in the river districts since his appointment.

It is alleged that McBeth and Thirkell ran a gambling joint similar to that which was raided a few days ago at Brownsville and that they did a flourishing business. The illegal sale of liquor is alleged to have been carried on in the drug stores regularly and that it was frequently sold on Sunday without a prescription.

The arrests have caused a general sensation and are the chief topic of conversation of the town. All the men go to ball for their appearance at court.

The railroad company filed a bond of $2,000 at the outset of taking the property.

SLOW IN COURT.

Impossible to Get An Equity Case Ready for Hearing This Morning. Some Continuances

UNIONTOWN, Feb. 3.—The equity list was taken up before Judges Umbel and Van Swearingen this morning, but it was impossible to get a case up. Of the 17 cases on the list some were continued because of the absence of witnesses, some on account of sickness and some because the attorneys were not prepared. A case continued this morning was that of John Curry and others of Connellsville against Chris Han Folly. This case involves a deed in West Virginia timber lands in which Folly seemed options, and the plaintiff alleges that they were not properly transferred to a company in which he was interested.

A case which will likely be taken up this afternoon is that of R. S. Matthews, receiver in bankruptcy for Philip Pepe against Cuscutto Zepelio of New Haven. This involves the validity of a deed to property in New Haven.

GRAFT CASE TRIALS.

Testimony as to the Fer Foot Rule Taken This Morning.

DELANEY GOES ON THE STAND

To Prove That Fer Foot Rule Was in Effect on Contracts When He Was Superintendent of Grounds and Buildings

United Press Telegram
HARRISBURG, Feb. 3.—With the resumption of the graft cases today the prosecution will attempt to strengthen its case. Before any witnesses were called this morning the court's attention was called by Attorney Rochon to the fact that some of the witnesses called by the defense were not present. A side bar conference was then held at which the court said the quality of the testimony could not be considered, and so informed the jury.

Chief Justice Judge Delaney, former Superintendent of Grounds and Buildings, was called to the stand to prove that the fer foot rule was in effect on contracts when he was Superintendent of Grounds and Buildings. The prosecution offered evidence that in 1910 Delaney had a contract with the city for the construction of a sewer. The contract provided for the construction of a sewer 18 inches in diameter and 100 feet long. The contract was for $1,000. Delaney was called to the stand to prove that the fer foot rule was in effect on contracts when he was Superintendent of Grounds and Buildings.

ANOTHER CHANCE GIVEN THE YOUTH.

Congressmen Cooper and Acheson Interest Themselves for a Review.

REHEARING ON FEBRUARY 17.

Representatives From McKeesport, West Newton and Conneltsville Requested to Be Present and State Their Case Before Rivers and Harbors Committee.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 3.—At the instance of Congressman E. F. Acheson, who is a member of the rivers and harbors committee of congress has set aside February 17, two weeks from today, as the day for a hearing on a review of the department's decision against cancellation of the youth from McKeesport, Conneltsville and at that time committees from McKeesport, West Newton and Conneltsville are requested to be on hand if the people of those towns still entertain hope of securing government action.

There is but one step left open for youth boaters. The survey and adverse report made by the engineers, which was approved by the secretary of war, closes the matter unless the rivers and harbors committee can induce the board of engineers to reduce the case and to send another commission over the route for a new report.

JAMISON BACK.

Former Assistant B. & O. Yardmaster Has Been Appointed Assistant Trainmaster.

Thomas Jamison formerly assistant yardmaster at Conneltsville, but for the past year assistant trainmaster on the Somerset & Cambria branch of the B. & O. has been transferred to Conneltsville where he will become assistant trainmaster. This change was brought about by the leave of absence granted to Frank S. Moore, who will go west for six months. Harry Hanlon takes up the duties of the trainmaster. Two yardmasters, one day and one night will be assigned to the Somerset & Cambria branch. They will be stationed at Adams. It is likely that William Dico and Frank McKee will be appointed to these places.

Another change announced is the appointment of L. M. Peck, yardmaster at Uniontown, to be an assistant trainmaster. There is a general reorganization of the forces all over the road and it is likely that there will be several other changes announced in a few days.

DARR RELIEF

The minutes of the various church announcements Sunday, that a general collection for the fund would be taken up next Sunday.

The general relief association expects to make a distribution at Darr this week. The bitter weather has been severely felt by the unfortunate fat the mine during the past week.

THE WRONG MAN.

Wesley Means Throws a Whisky Bottle at Combatant and Hits Passenger in Mouth.

Wesley Means of Uniontown crossed a distance on a West Penn car Saturday night. He got into a quarrel with a passenger on the car and attempted to hit him with a whisky bottle. The bottle was hurled at his opponent, but instead of striking him hit Charles Lawson square in the mouth making an ugly wound.

The disturbance took place at the B. & O. crossing. The car was turned and Means taken to Uniontown and handed over to the police. He was later released on a forfeit.

CHRISTNER MANAGER.

Will Have Charge of the White Rock Distilling Company. The Directors of the White Rock Distilling Company met Saturday and elected B. H. Christner general manager of the distillery. Mr. Christner is a well known young man and has, for several years been engaged in the revenue service.

He succeeds S. K. Reed at the distillery. Mr. Reed having sold his interest some time ago to local men.

OFFICIALS PROTEST

Against Inspectors Recommendations for the Naomi Mine.

The United Coal Company has appealed from the decision of the several mine inspectors who made official report as to conditions at the Naomi mine near Belle Vernon following the big explosion some weeks ago. A lot of similar to that sent to the officials at the Banning mine was addressed under date of January 21 to James C. Henderson superintendent at Naomi. Among the other signatures to the letter was that of Henry Lottel, inspector for that particular bituminous district.

The company claims that to abide by the decision of the inspectors would mean a great outlay of money and take considerable time, and that moreover such order is not called for by any danger to the lives or health of the men.

THEATRICAL.

Plays Booked at the New Soloman Theatre During the Coming Ten Days.

George Millner's "The Scout's Revenge," is billed to be at the New Soloman, matinee and night on February 8. The company presenting this great play has been very carefully selected and the minor parts are well played and as those of greater prominence giving an exceedingly smooth and artistic performance.

The scenery and properties are on a complete and elaborate scale and the performance is not equalled by any travelling organization. Prices matinee 10 and 25 cents, night, 25, 50 and 75 cents.

The Governor's Pardon.

An attraction of more than ordinary interest will be "The Governor's Pardon," this season's most successful comedy drama, presented at the New Soloman Theatre matinee and night, on Thursday, February 6. In this play Billy Zubin, one of our brightest stars adds a new character to the stage in his portrayal of the title role of "The Governor's Pardon." Around the title role the author has woven a story of more than ordinary dramatic interest. Prices matinee 10 and 25 cents, night 25, 35, 50 and 75 cents. Seats now on sale.

Maud Muller.

Miss Adelaide Van Wilt who has been engaged by Manager Blomfield for the part of Maud Muller which she created last season in the well known play of that name secured the unanimous approval of the critics in every city in which she has appeared. Miss Van Wilt's portrayal of this part was a revelation to her many friends and admirers, for although she has many successes to her credit, they are notably in the leading comedy roles of great productions. A few seasons ago she decided to embrace character work and that her selection was a wise one is evidenced by her portrayal of Maud Muller, which has established her as without a rival in this portion in line of work for which she is so eminently fitted. Seats now ready. Prices 25, 35, 50 and 75 cents.

Lena Rivers Underlined.

Beatrice Noyes in "Lena Rivers" is underlined at the Soloman Theatre. It comes on Monday, February 13. Miss Noyes recently scored a hit in "Lena Rivers" during a week's engagement at the Alvin Theatre in Pittsburgh.

The Diabolope

A new species of antelope expected shortly at the zoo—Punch.

WEAKNESS OF THE PRIMARY LAW.

The Universal Primary law has been found in practice to contain many weaknesses. Protests against its provision and their effects are going up in every quarter, and the chief objection seems to be that no adequate provision exists to prevent the voters of one party from voting the ticket of another and thus giving the opposition the double-cross.

The theory of the law is that the party workers will always challenge the votes of those who attempt to vote the primary ticket of another party; but in practice this does not work out satisfactorily. There are too many cases in which the party nominates are made in the house of the enemy, in plain violation of the law's intent and purpose.

Another objectionable feature is the requirement that each candidate file a petition containing a certain number of names in order to entitle him to a place on the primary ticket. These petitions are in derogation of the inherent right of the citizens to become a candidate for office without the express permission of anybody else. No candidate should be required to go through the senseless performance of obtaining anybody's consent to his ambition.

Nor should the act of signing any candidate's petition for a place on the primary ticket be construed as a pledge of support to such candidate. The implication is unwarranted. The candidate does not necessarily follow.

MINERAL RESOURCES OF FAYETTE FARMERS.

Fayette county people are awakening to the fact that there are other veins of coal underlying the soil besides the Conneltsville seam, and that the others, while not so valuable as the Conneltsville coal, are well worth looking after and protecting from danger of loss by being undermined and broken.

It was perhaps natural that these coal veins should have been neglected and left right of or even remained undiscovered. The Conneltsville coal was until ten years ago almost "dirt cheap." There was no incentive to look for other veins. Few tests were made for coal. It outcropped so many places that it was visible to the unaided eye. The diamond drill was not employed until recent years. It was followed by the Geological Survey, which has accurately mapped the underworld and laid bare its mineral resources to the astonished owners.

The Sewickley coal vein is certainly worth preserving, and it is not the only valuable deposit that may be found under many Fayette county farms.

THE CANALIZATION OF THE YOUGH.

The Conneltsville Merchants' Association has discussed the matter of lower railroad rates to and from Conneltsville, but nothing has yet been accomplished; and it will be difficult to accomplish anything under existing conditions.

It has been the universal experience, however, that waterways have a strong tendency to accomplish the end which the Conneltsville merchants aim at. The latter will, therefore, consult their own interests and at the same time do a public-spirited act for the advancement of Conneltsville by sending representatives to Washington to appear before the Committee on Rivers and Harbors and join with West Newton and McKeesport in presenting reasons why the Government should canalize the Youghiogheny river from McKeesport to Conneltsville.

Congressman Cooper has succeeded in obtaining another hearing in the matter. This is the time, and the Merchants' Association of the natural selection, to present the claims of Conneltsville to Congress.

CHARITY THAT THINKETH NO EVIL.

The Solson Theatre was sold on Sunday afternoon, but the address of Dr. Byron W. King warned the hearts of his audience and made them forget the kindly disclaimer. The speaker named his coveted title, The Uplifter of the Human Race.

He preached a sermon of pathos and power and practical Christianity on "The Charity that thinketh no evil." The Master enumerated the cardinal virtues as Faith, Hope and Charity, "and the greatest of these."

He added, "his Charity." The charity he spoke about is not confined to more almsgiving. It is the charity of him who loves his neighbor as himself; the charity that knows not selfishness; the charity that is a stranger to backbiting; "the charity that thinketh no evil."

Charity of this sort is the greatest virtue that man may practice, and none will dispute the Master's classification. Such charity is godlike. Perhaps none but him who died upon the Cross has ever attained to its perfection.

But we all may try and the more we try the greater will be our reward. We will not have to wait for that in the shadowy hereafter. It will come to us in the living Present. The happiness we give to others will be reflected in our own hearts.

THE PERSONALLY-OWNED POLITICAL ORGAN.

When a newspaper becomes the personal property of a junta of politicians it ceases to represent the interests of the people, or of its particular party as a whole. It becomes the organ of personal ambition, serving no interests but those of its masters, the politician and his supporters.

The support of what is wisest and best, and consequently unfitted for that leadership which it assumes.

The staid old Morgantown Post is an example of this fact. Contrary to the wishes of its ownership, it evinced a disposition to support the wrong candidate for Governor. The majority political interest stepped in, took possession, dismissed the editor, put a new one in his place, confiscated a whole edition of the paper and switched its policy, all in a night.

A newspaper that is of a faction, for a faction and by a faction is seldom popular with the people and therefore seldom successful. Unrestrained by such sinister control, the average editor is honest and fair in his dealings with men and measures. Such editors have the confidence of the community. A newspaper so constructed is a power among the people, and it exercises a wholesome influence in and out of its party.

ANOTHER CIRCULATION BLUFFER.

The Uniontown Genius has joined the squad of circulation bluffers. It says it "sells more merchandise for its advertisers than any other evening newspaper in Fayette county."

The Genius knows how many copies it prints, but the knowledge is exclusive. It also knows how many copies The Courier prints, because the fact is made a matter of public information by the deliberate action of the publishers of this paper.

There is, therefore, no excuse for the Genius making any mistake about the matter of circulation, yet its error in this respect has been grievous and lies under the just suspicion of being premeditated.

The Courier has reason to believe that it has by far the largest circulation of any newspaper in Fayette county, and it invites comparative investigation of the fact by disinterested persons. If the Genius is honest in its statement it will accept this invitation.

Its Siamese twin, The Herald, has been the recipient of repeated similar invitations, but it has deliberately ignored them.

The Brimstone Corner contingent has moved into winter quarters. No more will be heard of them as they went in with the groundhog they will stay in with him for the coming six weeks, and then stay in some more.

WEATHER FORECAST.

Western Pennsylvania—Fair, not so cold, Monday and Tuesday.

Some New Goods

Not all bargain talk this week. Use more of our eyes to tell you about some of the new goods here and to come this week. Day by day from now on we will be placing new goods on our shelves. Preparing for the coming spring season. Expect to do business and lots of it this coming season. Going to have the goods here that will meet this business. Of course we have plenty of goods here that we want to get rid of during this month of February, but along with these we will have enough of the new goods to make it worth while to visit this store to see the pretty new fabrics and garments.

The Spring Suits

Blues and browns, and especially the blue. That's the way the colors show up for the coming season. Take your fashion book and read about the fabrics and colors for the coming season and then come and see these fabrics made up into suits. About 50 suits here as we write and more coming in each day. Suits here that we are proud to have to show you. Prices start at $25.00, and as last season, we call particular attention to the suits here at $25.00. Don't believe you'll be able to duplicate such values elsewhere for anything near the price.

New Percales &amp; Gingham

Priced at 15 cents the yard. New patterns that you'll want for spring waists and dresses. These are on show this week and we call particular attention to the percales.

St. Gall Batiste

An entirely new fabric that we have to show you this season. Priced at 15 cents the yard. Nearly all white ground with small neat figures. Call particular attention to the quality of this for the price quoted. Believe it to be the best bargain we ever had to offer for 15 cents. On sale Tuesday of this week.

Children's Dresses

Sizes 2 to 6 years. Like to have you see these. Examine the material and the making and learn the prices and then tell us if you can afford to put in your time making anything like these. White dresses start at 50 cents and from that on up to $7.00. Colored start at 50 cents and from that on up to $2.50 and $3.00. These made from best quality seersucker gingham. Neatly trimmed. These dresses are designed by people who understand how to make children's dresses that will fit well, wear well and will look well, and yet be priced so moderately that it will seem like a waste of time to try to make them yourself.

White Waists

First showing of the new waists the latter part of this week. Prices on these start at $1.00 and from that on up to $3.00 and $5.00. Perfect fitting garments, well made and of good material. Waists that you will enjoy looking over and that will appeal to you as the kind of waists that you want for your own wear.

Winter Coats and Furs

Want to end up this advertisement by calling your attention to some of these half price articles. We want to get rid of them and there's a fairly good assortment here for you to choose from and everyone is exactly half price.

BOY NOW RULES OVER PORTUGAL.

King Carlos and Crown Prince
Luiz Assassinated as Result of Misgovernment.

MANUEL II PROCLAIMED KING

While Premier Franco, Detested Dictator, Is Retained to Stamp Out
Fires of Revolt Fanned by Tyranny.
Repressive Measures Adopted.

Lisbon, Feb. 3.—All Portugal is overwhelmed at the killing of the king and the crown prince. Although torn by internal dissensions the last few months, terrorized by acts of crime and bloodshed, uprisings in the streets, outrages with knife and bomb, and always fearful lest these signs of revolution would culminate in some dreadful outbreak of passion, Portugal was not prepared for the blow that fell when the king and prince were shot to death.

All night Queen Amelie, in the royal palace, sat between the biers where rested the bodies of her husband and her son, prostrated with grief. Troops guarded the palace, a squadron of cavalry surrounded the house in which Premier Franco passed the night, special details were drawn up before public buildings and reserves were quartered in barracks ready for a call that might come to spring to arms.

KING CARLOS.

But Lisbon did not sleep. Scarcely a soul throughout the city closed eyes. An unnatural silence pervaded the place, for after the first awakening to the tragedy that had been enacted, with its attendant scenes and confusion, shops and cafes were closed, the doors of theatres were hastily locked, houses were barricaded and the streets were cleared. No one might say where the next blow would fall, and revolution, that sweeps through a city like a fire in dry places, drove the people into their homes, the places where they might be secure.

Manuel Proclaimed King.
Premier Franco has proclaimed the accession of Prince Manuel to the throne, the naval and military chiefs, the high dignitaries of the church sworn allegiance to the new king and Portugal still lives under a monarchy.

No more beautiful day could be imagined than that which hereafter will mark the date on which King Carlos and Crown Prince Luiz met their death. Returning from a journey at the king's estate at Villa Viçosa, accompanied by the queen, the crown prince and the infant Manuel, the sovereign seemingly was in happy mood when he stepped into the carriage in waiting at the railroad station.

All the surrounding streets were filled with throngs waiting to see the king and though guards were stationed all along the route, no one had thought of the attempt which was to come. The people were allowed to circulate as freely as they pleased, and for a short time so great were the crowds the driver of the carriage had difficulty in making a start.

Greeted With Silence.
The entire court, ministers and ladies in waiting and many army officers were in the station when the train drawing the royal family pulled in. It was because of the beautiful weather that the open carriage was in waiting for the royal family, and when they took their places they were greeted with some lifting of hats, but mostly in silence. Then as the carriage sharply turned into the Rue do Arsenal there was a crackling of guns and a shower of bullets tore their way into the bodies of the king and crown prince and the little prince. The assassins, numbering six in all, boldly ran up to the sides of the carriage and poured in a hail of lead before the stupefied escort could intervene. The king and crown prince, half rising, fell back into the cushions, the blood spilling from royal wounds. The coachman brought his whip across the flanks of his horses, and with a bound they dashed away, disappearing into the arsenal quadrangle. The panic-stricken people, who had stood on all sides, could see the queen leaning over the crown prince and her younger son, who also was bleeding.

Strikes With a Bouquet.
How many shots were fired no one can say, but it was a veritable fusillade coming from the right side of the street. The effort of the crown prince, who was sitting opposite to the king, to rise was futile and without avail, for he just lifted himself sufficiently to pitch forward and fall over the prostrate body of his father. Queen Amelie, uttering a scream that could be heard by all who had not become frenzied by the attack, threw herself toward her sons, shielding their bodies with her own. She frantically struck at the murderers with a bouquet of roses which she had been carrying, but even in the face of this the men fired again and again. As he saw his father and his brother fall Prince Manuel whipped out a revolver and discharged it at the men, but was himself struck on the right arm by a bullet from a carbine. A footman in the carriage also was wounded, and it was stated that a bullet grazed the queen's shoulder but did not do her harm.

Only mounted police accompanied the carriage, as the king had refused military escort. The attack came from the rear, for the king was shot in the back of the neck, and it was entirely unexpected that the assassins had emptied their carbines and revolvers almost before the police knew what was going on and had turned to flee into the crowds that, now panic-stricken, had pressed back before their weapons. Then the guards charged upon them, mowing them down the streets and riddling three of them with bullets. Hundreds of the people joined in the pursuit and the others of the band of assassins were taken prisoners.

Royal Family Gather.
The royal carriage, which by this time been driven into the quadrangle and the gates of the arsenal were shut. The grief of the queen and Prince Manuel was heart-breaking. Within a few minutes the queen mother, the dowager Queen Maria Pia, the Duke of Oporto, the king's brother, and the ministers of state assembled, all weeping bitterly.

The news of the assassination spread like wildfire and thousands of persons, bewildered and terrified, poured into the streets. Soon the police occupied all the prominent places and the people hurried to their homes and barricaded the doors and windows to await in fear the unknown future. The strictest measures were taken by the officers in charge of the troops to suppress the slightest sign of disorder, but their work was light.

The condition of the newly proclaimed King Manuel is satisfactory to the physicians in attendance. His wounds are not severe, and if there are no complications, of which there are no signs now, he is expected to make speedy recovery. He carries his arm in a sling and declares that he suffers no pain.

Bodies Will Lie in State.
The bodies of King Carlos and Prince Luiz were embalmed and will lie in state, according to the custom of the court. The funeral probably will be held on Feb. 10.

Having proclaimed the accession of Manuel to the throne, Premier Franco announced his intention to adopt the most rigorous measures to crush any possible insurrection. In the absence of the chamber of deputies, the premier announced, the house of peers will be convened to recognize the accession of Manuel and he would then again take the oath of allegiance. The army and navy have sworn allegiance to Manuel, as well as all the garrisons and naval stations in the kingdom, and the new king has confirmed the dictatorship.

Later in the day came a solemn proclamation by King Manuel II announcing that he would uphold the constitution and preserve the integrity of the kingdom. In this proclamation, which is addressed to the Portuguese people, he says:

"An abominable crime has stricken me in my heart as a son and brother. I know the nation shares my grief and indignation and detests the horrible act, which is unprecedented in history. I am called upon by the constitution to preside over the destinies of the nation and in conformity therewith, shall do my utmost to promote the good of the fatherland and merit the affections of the Portuguese people. I swear to maintain the Catholic religion and the integrity of the kingdom and to observe myself and enforce observance by all the nation's political constitution. I also declare that it is my pleasure that the present ministers shall remain in office."

The proclamation is signed by Dom Manuel II and is countersigned by all the ministers. During the day Queen Amelie was visited by Senator Pinto, ex-minister of war, the chief of the conservatives, the chief of the Nationalists and a large number of military officers, who expressed their deep sympathy. She has received condolences from the rulers of many countries and from every quarter comes the news that the crime is viewed with horror.

The government has given out a statement that the recent events will only strengthen monarchistic sentiments, both among the civil and military classes of the nation, and that the discipline and temper of the troops are admirable and unflinching. Madrid, Feb. 3.—El Mundo publishes a statement that a republic has been proclaimed in Oporto, Portugal, but no confirmation of this can be obtained.

London, Feb. 3.—It is reported that the British Atlantic fleet, now at Vigo, has been ordered to Lisbon to watch events.

Have Your Count's Title Insured.
St. Petersburg, Feb. 3.—A revision of the college of heraldry of Georgia, Transcaucasia, has resulted in the uncovering of monster forgeries of princely titles. Among 2,000 registered hereditary coats of arms 600 have been found to be bogus.

"And that is not what I chased you for, either," continued Mortimer. "Every old boy, I've got a certain neatly fixed hypocrite where my decent man would like to have him—by the neck of his neck. He's fit only to kick, and I'm going to kick him good and plenty, and in the process he's going to let go of several things. One of 'em's yours."

"I told you once that I'd let you know when to step up and say 'Good evening,' didn't I?"

"Didn't I?" repeated Mortimer peevishly, beginning to lose countenance.

"I don't understand you," said Plank. "and I don't think I want to understand you."

"What do you mean?" demanded Mortimer thickly. "Don't you want to marry that girl?" But he shrank dismayed under the slow blaze that lighted Plank's blue eyes.

"All right," he stammered, struggling to get his feet and instinctively backing away. "I thought you meant business. I—what the devil do I care who you marry? It's the last time I try to do anything for you or for anybody else!"

Plank gazed at him for a moment. The anger in his face died out.

"I am not ungrateful," he said. "You may say almost anything except that, Leroy. I am not disloyal, no matter what else I may be. But you have made a bad mistake. So let us forget the matter."

But Mortimer, keenly appreciative of the pleasure of being misunderstood, squeezed some moisture out of his clenched eyes and sat down, a martyr to his emotions. "To think," he gulped, "that you of all men should turn on me like this!"

"I didn't mean to. Can't you understand, Leroy, that I was still ready to give him aid at a crisis, had always been ready. Time enough when Plank turned stony to use persuasion."

He lay back, rolling about in the lounge, and, yawning at space. "I'll shake down Quarrier," he said to himself. "I'll make him pay for his treachery—scaring me out of Amelie's hand. That will be restitution, not extortion!"

He was angry because he had been for days screwing up his courage to the point of seeking Quarrier face to face. He had not wished to do it. He could only be repugnant to him, although he continually explained to himself that it was restitution, not extortion.

"Oh," he groaned, "what an ass I am!" And he got out of his cab in front of a very new limestone basement house with red geraniums blooming on the window sills and let himself in with a latchkey.

The interior of the house was attractive in a rather bright, new, clean fashion. The maid, too, who appeared at the sound of the closing door and took his hat and gloves was as newly groomed as the floor and woodwork and so noiseless as to be conspicuous in her swift, silent movements.

"Anybody here?" he growled, leaning into the drawing room at a tiny grand piano case in unvarnished Chippendale walnut.

"There is nobody at home, sir," said the maid.

He began to ascend the stairway, breathing heavily, then, third over the deep velvet strip, his fat hand grasping the banister rail.

Somewhere on the second floor a small dog barked, and Mortimer traversed the hall and opened the door into a room hung with gold Spanish leather and pale green curtains.

"Hello, Tito!" he said affably as a tiny Japanese spaniel barked herself at him, backing furiously, then began writhing and weaving herself about him, gurgling recognition and welcome.

Presently another maid entered, with an apple cut into thin wafers and a decanter of port, and Mortimer lay back in his chair, sipping his apple in the thick, crimson wine and feeding morsels of the combination to himself and to Tito at intervals until the apple was all gone and the decanter three-fourths empty.

It was still daylight when Mortimer awoke, conscious of people about him. As he opened his eyes a man bowed. Several people seated by the windows joined in. He yawned, laughed, turning his heavy eyes from one to an-

MACE & CO., "THE BIG STORE."

All the way up town as he jolted about in his seat he angrily regretted the meeting with Plank even in spite of the check. What demon had possessed him to boast to display his hand when there had been no necessity? Plank was still ready to give him aid at a crisis, had always been ready. Time enough when Plank turned stony to use persuasion.

He lay back, rolling about in the lounge, and, yawning at space. "I'll shake down Quarrier," he said to himself. "I'll make him pay for his treachery—scaring me out of Amelie's hand. That will be restitution, not extortion!"

He was angry because he had been for days screwing up his courage to the point of seeking Quarrier face to face. He had not wished to do it. He could only be repugnant to him, although he continually explained to himself that it was restitution, not extortion.

"Oh," he groaned, "what an ass I am!" And he got out of his cab in front of a very new limestone basement house with red geraniums blooming on the window sills and let himself in with a latchkey.

The interior of the house was attractive in a rather bright, new, clean fashion. The maid, too, who appeared at the sound of the closing door and took his hat and gloves was as newly groomed as the floor and woodwork and so noiseless as to be conspicuous in her swift, silent movements.

"Anybody here?" he growled, leaning into the drawing room at a tiny grand piano case in unvarnished Chippendale walnut.

"There is nobody at home, sir," said the maid.

He began to ascend the stairway, breathing heavily, then, third over the deep velvet strip, his fat hand grasping the banister rail.

Somewhere on the second floor a small dog barked, and Mortimer traversed the hall and opened the door into a room hung with gold Spanish leather and pale green curtains.

"Hello, Tito!" he said affably as a tiny Japanese spaniel barked herself at him, backing furiously, then began writhing and weaving herself about him, gurgling recognition and welcome.

Presently another maid entered, with an apple cut into thin wafers and a decanter of port, and Mortimer lay back in his chair, sipping his apple in the thick, crimson wine and feeding morsels of the combination to himself and to Tito at intervals until the apple was all gone and the decanter three-fourths empty.

It was still daylight when Mortimer awoke, conscious of people about him. As he opened his eyes a man bowed. Several people seated by the windows joined in. He yawned, laughed, turning his heavy eyes from one to another, recognizing a couple of young girls at the window. He didn't want to get up, but there is in the society he now adorned a stringency of etiquette known as "re-innocent" and which to ignore is to become unpopular.

So he got on to his massive legs and went over to shake hands with a gravity becoming the ceremony.

"How do you do, Miss Hutchins?" Thought you were at Ambury Park. How do you do, Miss Del Garcia? Have you been out in Millbank's motor yet?"

"We broke down at McGowan's pass," said Miss Del Garcia, laughing the laugh that had made her so attractive in "A Word to the Wife."

"Muddy gasoline," nodded Millbank tersely, an iron jawed, overgrown man of forty with a florid face shaved blue.

"We passed Mr. Plank's big touring car," observed Lydia. "Vee, shifting this to the couch and brushing the black and white hairs from her automobile coat. "How much does a car like that cost, Leroy?"

"About twenty-five thousand," he said gloomily. Then, looking up, "Hold on, Millbank. Don't be going. Why can't you all dine with us? Never mind your car. Ours is all right, and we'll run out into the country for dinner. How about it, Miss Del Garcia?"

But both Miss Del Garcia and Miss Hutchins had accepted another invitation, in which Millbank was included.

They stood about, talk floating, leather decorated couch thrown back, listening for a while to talk the garage talk which fascinates people of their type. Then Millbank looked at the clock, made his adieu to Lydia, nodded significantly to Mortimer and followed the others downstairs.

"There was something amiss with his motor, for it made a startling racket in the street, finally plunging forward with a kick."

Lydia laughed as the two young girls in the lounge turned to nod to her in mock despair. Then she came running back upstairs, holding her skirt free from her hurrying little feet.

"Well," she inquired, as Mortimer turned back from the window to confront her.

"I missed him," said Mortimer. She flung the coat over a chair, stood a moment, her fingers busy with her hair pegs, then sat down on the couch, took in her lap. She was very pretty, dark skin, marvelously graceful in her every movement.

"Can't you see him tomorrow?" she asked.

"I suppose so," said Mortimer slowly. "Oh, Lord! How I hate this business!"

"Can't you see him tomorrow?" she asked.

"Haven't he misused your confidence? Haven't he taken your money?" she asked. "It may be unpleasant for you to make him unhappy, but you're a coward if you don't!"

"I wish I'd held fast now. I never supposed Plank would take hold. It was that detestable old fellow who scared me stiff. The minute I saw him scurrying to cover like a stung cat I was fool enough to climb the first tree. I've had my lesson, little girl!"

"I hope you'll give Howard his. Somebody ought to," she said quietly. About half past 8 they dined in a white and pink dining room furnished in dull gray walnut and served by a stealthy, white haired, pink skinned butler.

They had planned to go for a spin in Mortimer's motor after dinner, but in view of the Quarrier fiasco neither was in the mood for anything.

"Do you know, Leroy," she observed as they left the table and sauntered back into the pale blue drawing room, "do you know that the servants haven't been paid for three months?"

"Oh, for heaven's sake," she expostulated, "don't begin that sort of thing. I get enough of that at home. I get it every time I show my nose!"

"I only mentioned it," she said carelessly. "You had an opportunity to make Howard pay you back. What are you going to do?"

"Do?"

"Of course. You are going to do something, I suppose. You haven't got to let me how you intend to make Howard return the money you lost through his juggling with your stock?"

"I don't exactly know myself," admitted Mortimer, still overcast. "I mean to put it in his hands squarely as a debt of honor that he owes. I asked him whether to invest. He never warned me not to. He is morally responsible."

She nodded.

"I'll tell him so, too," blundered Mortimer, shaking himself into an upright posture and laying a pudgy clinched fist on the table. "You are afraid of him. He'll beat that out too. I know enough to stagger him. Not that I mean to use it. I'm not going to have him think that my demands on him for my own property resemble extortion. I've half a mind to shake that money out of him in one way or another."

He struck the table and looked at her for further sign of approval.

"I'm not afraid of him," he repeated. "I wish to God he were here, and I'd tell him so."

She said coolly, "I was wishing that you would."

For awhile they sat silent, preoccupied, avoiding each other's direct gaze. When she rose she started, watching her in a dazed way as she walked to the telephone.

"Shall I?" she asked quietly, turning to him, her hand on the receiver.

"Wall. What are you going to do?" he stammered.

Harry Thaw Placed in Observation Ward at Asylum for Criminal Insane.

HOPES FOR AN EARLY RELEASE

Four Hours After the Jury Acquits Him of Murder He Leaves the Tombs for Sojourn of Uncertain Duration at Matteawan.

Matteawan N. Y. Feb. 3.—Harry K. Thaw has begun the routine of a simple life which the authorities at the state hospital for the criminal insane say will make his long stay in the Tombs prison in New York city seem like the height of gaiety in comparison. The new patient in the observation ward slept soundly, the presence of the fifty other men in the dormitory not giving him the slightest concern. It was after the usual retiring hour when Thaw reached the hospital and he immediately went to bed. He had enjoyed the trip from New York with his counsel as well as the dinner at the hotel in Fishkill landing with his counsel and one or two newspaper friends. Although the two deputies who accompanied him were guests at the dinner, there was no suggestion of prison or asylum restriction during the repast and Thaw found the occasion much to his liking.

He arose in the morning at 6 o'clock and ate a hearty breakfast at the "Katie and Tork table." Only fifty-four men out of the more than 700 in the institution are allowed this privilege the others being restricted to spoons. Thaw seemed much refreshed from his sound sleep and declared he needed the rest after the trying hours on Friday night and Saturday.

Inmates stare at Thaw. About 500 men were in the main dining room when Thaw reached the breakfast table and he was the center of attention. The novelty of the noted patient's presence had not worn off by dinner time and he was compelled again to eat under the scrutiny of many eyes. No one seemed to have prepared meals having yet been made for him. Thaw shared the hospital fare with all the others. His dinner included roast pork, potatoes, sauerkraut, bread, butter and coffee.

At 3 p. m. Thaw attended divine services in the hospital auditorium or theatre conducted by the Rev. Harry Sheldene, pastor of the Fishkill Landing Methodist Episcopal church. One hundred patients were present and Thaw had expressed a desire to attend. Unless patients especially request it, they do not attend the Sunday religious services which are conducted by ministers of various denominations.

During the day Thaw declared to one of the attendants that he probably would not be in the hospital more than one week. He said his lawyers would sue out a writ of habeas corpus in his behalf, and he was sure he would be allowed his liberty as the result of a hearing in court or an inquiry before a commission.

To Be Photographed. Thaw's picture and measurements for the hospital records will be taken during the early part of the week. He already has given his age to the authorities as thirty-seven years. During his stay in the observation ward prior to being assigned to some particular division or to private quarters Thaw will be under the immediate supervision of Dr. Amos T. Baker, one of the medical assistants to Superintendent Lamb. Dr. Baker said he would not allow Thaw to have liquor and to smoke unless his condition seemed to demand them for a time in medical moderation.

Thaw brought a large sum of money with him to the hospital but finding he would not be allowed its custody, handed it over to his counsel. During the week provisions will be made by the family for special meals and table delicacies for Thaw, the money being placed in the hands of the authorities.

Has Two Cellars. At 5 o'clock last evening Dr. Britton D. Evans of Morris Plains, N. J., and Dr. Smith Ely Jelliffe of New York, alienists called at the hospital. They were employed by the defense in both trials of Harry Thaw and while both evaded questions regarding their presence here it is said they came at the instigation of Mrs. William Thaw to examine her son and be prepared with evidence when habeas corpus proceedings are brought up to liberate him.

"We just had a Sunday off," said Dr. Evans who declared at the first trial that Thaw had a "brain storm," "so we came up to see Harry."

New York Feb. 3.—Adjudged not guilty of the murder of Stanford White by reason of insanity at the time the fatal shots were fired, Harry Kendall Thaw was held by the court to be a dangerous lunatic and was whirled away to the state hospital for the criminal insane at Matteawan. The verdict after twenty-five hours of waiting and when everyone connected with the case had abandoned all hope of an agreement ever being reached to this or any other trial. Four hours after the foreman's lips had framed the words "Not guilty" with the accompanying insanity clause Thaw protesting he was sane was on his way to Matteawan. A little after midnight he had been received in the institution under commitment papers which directed his detention "until discharged by due course of law."

Receiving a few words is adding a new sense—Licking.

PROHIBS ACTIVE.

Intend to Raise Fund of $100,000 for Their Fight This Year.

Special to The Courier. CHICAGO Feb. 3.—Particularly active campaign is to be carried on this year by the Prohibition party according to the announcement of plans made by the county officials. It is intended to raise a fund of at least $100,000 for the fight of which nearly 20,000 have already been subscribed. Speakers will be sent into every State of the Union to make formal addresses and stump speeches on the cause of total prohibition. The campaign will be carried into the new territory in every locality.

A keen campaign is to be inaugurated in the South. The Prohibition party have already been established in Dallas, Texas and preparations in being made by the local committee to force the battle in all southern territory. In Texas a high ideal is to be made to submit to the voters in 1909 a constitutional amendment prohibiting the sale of liquor in the State. It is feared that a Prohibition statute enacted by a dedicated unconstitutional and the present constitution so the fight will be made for an amendment to the document.

THE LAND OF OPHIR.

Where Was It—In Mashanaland, South Arabia or India?

One of the most interesting and important questions concerning Biblical sites, perpetually baffling research and persistently evading solution. Where is the land of Ophir? Dr. April Peters at a public meeting in Berlin declared emphatically that the famous Biblical region is located between the Zambesi and Limpopo rivers. He told his German audience how he has discovered many shafts of ancient gold mines 500 temples fortifications and other ruins of Phoenician origin. Dr. Peters affirms that commerce with the Mashanaland being monopolized in the time of King Solomon. His opinion is that no other part of Africa could have exported the ivory, silver and precious stones which are recorded in the Bible as coming from Ophir. Against this theory founded as it undoubtedly is on very plausible evidence, Bible students are still likely to maintain on the testimony of Genesis 25 that Ophir was a section of South Arabia. There is no trace of the Phoenician Phoenicians still found to produce gold and gems with which the famous king's and monarchs of the ancient world traded in many countries distant from their Syrian shores. Many hostile writers have attempted to identify Ophir on the east coast of Africa with Ophir while yet others have located it in India. One of the most learned men with a special subject in the past of Professor Hornum who argued that the ancient land of gold was Arabia Felix—Hornum's Review.

SELF RESPECT

A Most Important Factor in Commanding the Respect of Others.

It is an old saying that no man has the respect of others who does not respect himself. A man to expect himself must first have a stake in the community in which he lives. That the life he is leading makes for the common good. One way to gain the respect of yourself and you feel low man is to have money and deposit it in a bank. When you do this you help yourself in the only manner commensurate with the National Bank of the City will be glad to assist you in saving by keeping your money safely and allowing you 4 per cent interest.

The Average Man. "What's an average man?" One who has a small stock of common sense and a little bit of common sense.

Would Get Copyright Fee. "What can I do for you?" "Well, you see, I've got a little bit of common sense and I'd like to get copyright on it." "I'll be glad to do that for you." "Thank you very much."—New York Press.

One Cooking Kettle ..... 2 quarts
One Cooking Kettle ..... 4 quarts
One Bake Pan ..... 1 quart
One Bake Pan ..... 2 quarts
One Two-piece Self-basting Roaster.

Good food and a good cook are not enough to produce a good meal. Much depends on the vessels in which the food is prepared. The best of pure food becomes unwholesome if prepared in a vessel that is not scrupulously clean. This is the chief difficulty with tin, iron or enameled vessels. Not only does this food burn easily, but after the vessels have been in use for some time there is always more or less disagreeable odor coming from the bottom, no matter how they are scoured and cleaned.

This difficulty becomes a positive danger to health when the enamel, which contains arsenic, antimony and lead, begins to crack and chip off. These poisons are absorbed by the foods, particularly fruits and vegetables, and often lead to chronic stomach trouble and other ailments, for which there is no apparent explanation.

For these reasons doctors, as well as teachers of domestic science, have been for years recommending the use of earthenware utensils. They are always clean, always wholesome, and subject to none of the objections which obtain against metal utensils.

You now know why you should have a set of "SANITO" Kitchen Utensils, and
